THE BOOKSELLERS now petitioning the Legiſlature for Relief, moſt humbly beg Leave to obſerve, that there is ſcarce an Inſtance of a new Edition of any living Author's Work printed without ſubmitting it to his Correction and Improvement: For though a Bookſeller at firſt generally purchaſes an Author's abſolute Right, yet he never fails to pay him for his Trouble in correcting every Edition; and in ſuch Works, as moſt are capable of ſome Improvement, the Authors ſometimes receive, in Proceſs of Time, as much Money for Corrections and Improvements, as was at firſt paid for the Copy. Many are a continual Expence to the Printers of them, as every Edition requires to be improved as well as carefully corrected; and for Dictionaries, Lexicons, &c. ſome Hundred Pounds are often paid for their Improvement.

The following Books are amongſt others that might be quoted in ſupport of the above Aſſertion:
